Green Parsons Team Profile

After spending most of their careers skating with their siblings, Caroline Green and Michael Parsons teamed up in 2019 and have been rising steadily through the ranks ever since, in the highly competitive world of Senior Ice Dance. They are close to achieving their dream of making the 2026 US Olympic team. Your support can help them get there.

Career highlights (so far...):

- 2022 ISU Four Continents Championships, Gold Medalists
- 2023 US Figure Skating Championships, Silver Medalists
- 2025 US Figure Skating Championships, Bronze Medalists

2025 U.S. Championships:

Caroline Green and Michael Parsons captivated the crowd with a subtle free dance to a medley including Douglas Dave’s “Dance with Me to the End of Love,” highlighted by a smooth one-foot step sequence and a sweeping curve lift that covered a third of the ice surface. They placed third in the free dance with 123.24 and took the bronze medal with 205.37 total.

“This national championships is the culmination of a huge amount of work that Caroline and I and our entire team have put in,” Parsons said. “It was a really hard year last year and this year has been difficult as well. This is confirmation that the work we put in and the dedication we have to ourselves and to each other is paying off.” Green and Parsons arrived in Wichita having dealt with injuries and surgery for Parsons in the past year.
